

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE INTERNATIONAL SOCIETY FOR RESEARCH ON EMOTIONS

August 6-10, 2006

Atlanta, Georgia

The annual ISRE conference comes at an exciting time for emotion research. The emotions have become central in the explorations of morality, decision-making, social cognition, health, culture, intergroup relations, the evolution of minds, and the neurobiological bases of behavior. The ISRE conference stands as a unique event in fostering this growing interest by bringing together leading researchers from various disciplines (e.g., psychology, philosophy, neurobiology, sociology, economics). We hope that you will join us for what promises to be a fantastic meeting!

Keynote speakers

Frans de Waal	Emory University
Lisa Feldman Barrett	Boston College
Barbara Fredrickson	University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
Robert Levenson	University of California, Berkeley

Invited symposia

Culture and Emotion	Co-chairs: Doyle McCarthy, Fordham University & Jeanne Tsai, Stanford University
Emotion and Cognitivism	Chair: Robert Soloman, University of Texas at Austin
Emotions and Morality	Chair: Jesse Prinz, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill
Emotions and Intergroup Relations	Chair: David DeSteno, Northeastern University
Emotions and Primate Sociality	Chair: Michael Owren, Georgia State University

Call for submissions

The program committee is seeking 500-word abstract submissions for:

1. Symposia, dialogues and workshops
2. Posters
3. Hot topic presentations

Submissions are open to all, and a maximum of one submission per category is allowed. To learn more about the conference and submit a proposal, use the electronic form at the conference website: <http://www.cas.gsu.edu/isre2006/index.html>

The deadline for all submissions is March 15, 2006.

Please address any questions to the conference organizer:
Andrea Scarantino, Department of Philosophy, Georgia State University at isre2006@gsu.edu.